In addition, that person should be denied treatment in the hospital or other medical facility. This applies to any person who has been exposed to a patient who has tested positive for COVID-19 and has symptoms consistent with COVID-19. The person should be denied treatment until they have been tested for COVID-19 and have been found to be negative.

It is also important to note that the results of the present study are in agreement with those of previous studies. The mean age of the patients in the present study was 30.2 years, which is similar to that of the patients in the study by Saito et al. (1995) and that of the patients in the study by Kuroda et al. (1995). The mean age of the patients in the present study was 30.2 years, which is similar to that of the patients in the study by Saito et al.
